Passenger Door Lock Barrel

As currently practised by competitor car manufacturers, the Sedan front passenger door is designed without a lock barrel. Since the common way to lock and unlock the doors is with the remote control key-ring transmitter, the frequent use of the key has diminished. The key's function now is as a recourse for the driver's door should the transmitter fail.

Deletion of the lock barrel has the side benefit of improving security to the front passenger door. Associated deleted components are the link, clip and lever, reset switch and cable.

Door Switch Pack Finishers

The door window switch pack veneer finishers are replaced by satin finish injection moulded plastic versions on XJ6 and XJR Sedans. The moulded finishers are color-keyed to the door trim casing in one of five colors. Fitment is by a spring steel strip latch moulded onto the forward edge of the switchpack and by a screw and spring steel retaining clip at the rearward edge.

Door Speaker Grilles

All door speaker grilles and finishers on non-premium ICE vehicles have undergone a material change from metal to plastic. There is no perceived difference in appearance between the new and previous parts but the plastic components possess a higher impact resistance.
