

Garmin Nuvi 1490 fitted into XKR

Note: photos taken whilst car is in the garage hence no signal, I just got back from a trip from Luxembourg through Belgium and France to southern England and back again without one loss of signal or glitch in navigation (signal was lost whilst in the channel tunnel but I guess that's expected) It does miss some of the speed cameras but these are provided by a file update. I am not too worried about that. Maps and routes work just fine.

If you have kids you may want to delete the shopping trolley vehicle from the memory, mine thinks its funny to have that set as the default.....

The only working button is the "Map" button which I am using for power on/off. The others remain simply to fill the holes and to look nice. All satnav controls are via touch screen.
